S. S. Nussbaum Taken Ill While at Conference; Had Coronary

Dr. Samuel S. Nussbaum of 231 Clinton avenue, medical director for the Kingston public school system since 1948, died early Sunday morning in a New York hospital.

Dr. Nussbaum left this city Wednesday morning to attend a conference of school physicians, and became ill while in New York.

He formerly practiced in Manhattan, but moved to this city after suffering a coronary about 12 years ago.

He built a wide circle of friends here, who knew him as a kindly person who always had a pleasant word for everyone.

Surviving are his wife, Eda

Nussbaum, a daughter, Elizabeth; two brothers, Oscar and Morris Nussbaum, of Kingston, and a sister, Mrs. David Berger of the Bronx.

Emerson Street Man

Hurt in Auto Mishap

Arthur Mower of 124 Emerson street received a laceration near the right eye when the automobile in which he was riding became involved in an accident on the River road near Ulster Park about 1:30 p. m., Saturday, the sheriff's office reported.

Mower was a passenger in an automobile driven by Robert Carey, 18, of 58 Murray street, sheriff's men said. The vehicle ran into a ditch, hit another automobile which was parked on a curve, crossed the road and hit a telephone pole, according to the report. The parked car was owned by Florence J. Walsh, 34, of the Bronx and received damage to its left rear fender and bumper, and Carey's vehicle was badly damaged to its front end and right side, the report stated.

Tells Newsmen He Will Go Down With Guns Blazing

LATE BULLETIN

Albany, Nov. 16 (AP)—Acting Lieut. Gov. Arthur H. Wicks indicated today he would bow tomorrow to an expected Republican conference request that he step down from his Senate leadership.

At a news conference this afternoon Wicks said he would make no parliamentary moves to ignore or kill any resolution declaring vacant his office as temporary president of the Senate. Wicks, who has vigorously opposed a request of Gov. Dewey that he resign his Senate leadership because of his Sing Sing visits to labor extortionist Joe Fay, promised, however, to go down with his guns blazing.

He told newsmen that he would tell his GOP Senate colleagues about a "quite revealing" conversation last month in Madison Square Garden at New York city with Rep. Dean P. Taylor, chairman of the State Republican Committee.

No Parliamentary Moves

Discussing reported decision of Republican senators to offer a resolution declaring Wicks' post vacant, the Kingston senator said:

"So far as I am concerned, there will be no parliamentary moves on my part to kill that resolution."

Publishers Will Sell Book On George DuPre as Novel

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—Publishers of "The Man Who Wouldn't Talk" prepared today to continue selling the book as a novel while offering refunds to the 10,000 persons who bought it as a true story.

Bennett Cerf, president of Random House Publishers, acted yesterday after the weekend admission of the "hero" of the story that it was all a hoax.

Author Quentin Reynolds wrote the book as the story of George DuPre, of Calgary, Alta., Canada. DuPre told a tale of torture at the hands of the Nazis during imaginary service in the French underground as a British spy.

DuPre broke down Friday under the questioning of a reporter and said he had been carried away by a desire to prove to the young "that a man with faith can endure anything—even death."

Cerf said yesterday that all who

POW's Vote Strong Noto Red Pleas

Decision Is 221 to 6 Against Returning to Communism—Protest by UN Observers

Panmunjom, Nov. 16 (AP)—Angry, howling Koreans today turned down, 221 to 6, Communist pleas to come home in another stinging boomerang for the Reds, who asked to interview them after 10 days of stalling.

The Communists dragged through the noisy interviews, meeting only 227 of the 471 Korean prisoners called to the explanation area.

One of the six POWs who chose communism sat through five hours of Red wheeling and talk. UN observers protested he was worn out and confused and unable to make a rational decision.

The Communist batting average was close to their overall 3 per cent for some 2,400 prisoners interviewed. The almost negligible figure has been a jolt to Red propagandists that all the 22,600 balking POWs wanted to come home.

To Meet Tuesday

The Reds were scheduled to meet with Chinese prisoners Tuesday.

Meanwhile, allied and Red diplomats meeting nearby named two subcommittees to begin work Tuesday on the time, place and makeup of the Korean political conference.

Some of the interviews with the Koreans lasted 2½ hours. They were relatively quiet until late in the afternoon, when the POWs began attacking the persuaders as if on signal.

Almost simultaneously, prisoners began to stand up and abuse the Communist explainers, who seemed unable to cope with the outbursts.

The POWs threw shoes and banners and tried to swing metal chairs at the Reds. But Indian guards, three and four strong in each explanation tent, wrestled them back to their seats.

Girl, 8, Is Dead, Her Mother Taken To Horton Hospital

Middletown, Nov. 16 (AP)—An 8-year-old girl is dead and her mother is in a hospital in what authorities pronounce a case of murder and attempted suicide.

Mrs. Jenny Joseph, 28, is accused of drowning her daughter, Evelyn Marie, in a bathtub and then cutting her own wrists and throat with a razor.

Mrs. Joseph, who police said had received psychiatric treatment some time ago, was reported in good physical condition today at Horton Memorial Hospital here.

State police, said the mother telephoned them early yesterday, her 11th wedding anniversary, that something was wrong with the child at the family's farm house at Bulville near here.

In Another Room

Officers said they found the child's body in a bathtub which contained several inches of water. The mother was in another room. Her husband, Manfred, 39, was out of the house at the time.

An autopsy showed the girl died of asphyxiation by drowning. Orange county District Attorney Abraham Issacs said. He said Mrs. Joseph was held on a technical charge of murder.

The Joseph family came to the United States from England in 1946, and have resided on a 75-acre farm at Bulville for the past year.

Seen as 'Deathbed Battle'

Ryan's union prior to its purge from the AFL had been estimated at 65,000 with 45,000 of these in the New York area.

In a convention eve statement in New York last night, spokesmen for the ILA-AFL claimed defection of almost "one-half" of the old Ryan membership and referred to the convention as the "deathbed battle" of the ILA. The ILA says most of the rival claims involve local officer sentiment and that the independent union still has the loyalty of rank and file membership.

Connolly will not attend the opening session today. He will represent his union in New York where an important jurisdictional squabble will be heard by the National Labor Relations Board.

The ILA-AFL wants the NLRB to hold an election at which it hopes to be chosen bargaining agent.

Ryan's Ouster Is Expected as ILA Opens Convention

Retirement Is Rumored Under Pressure for President Who Was Purged From AFL

Philadelphia, Nov. 16 (AP)—The International Longshoremen's Association opened its "special" convention today with President Joseph P. Ryan presiding amid rumors he will retire from his lifetime post under pressure.

William Bailey, Philadelphia district council president, officially opened the convention and called on the 450 delegates from all sections of the country to "close our ranks, and settle any differences if there be any."

Bailey introduced Ryan to the convention which responded with some applause. Ryan called on William (Preacher) Jones, a vice president from New Orleans, La., to read the invocation and then told the delegates that the union was like a "ship without a rudder" since its expulsion from the American Federation of Labor.

Ryan pushed aside the important matters which he said the convention had to take up in favor of a report from the credentials committee. The ILA executive explained that the "great issues" to be decided here will have to wait until we officially determine that the proper delegates are seated.

Fighting for Life

Purged from the AFL in September on charges of harboring criminals, the independent union is fighting for its life in the face of strong competition from the newly formed ILA-AFL on one hand, and stalled contract negotiations with the New York Shipping Association on the other.

The ILA's next regularly scheduled convention was due in 1955 but this special session was called following the AFL ouster for the purpose of electing a slate of officers and charting the future course of the union.

Ryan Declines Comment

Ryan, currently under indictment in New York on charges of stealing $45,000 in union funds, declined comment on retirement plans following an all-day secret session of the 20-member international executive council yesterday.

Asked whether he would preside at the convention's opening session today the ailing 69-year-old New Yorker replied:

"That all depends on the outcome of this meeting."

There was no official announcement following the meeting but reports circulated that Ryan's retirement from his lifetime post would be "accepted" and that he would be given the rank of president emeritus with an annual stipend of $10,000 a year, half his present salary.

Two in Line for Post

Should Ryan quit, two men are generally conceded to have the inside track for the post. Both are New Yorkers and both are veterans of the ILA ranks.

They are Patrick J. Connolly, executive vice president, and Capt. William J. Bradley, head of the union's tugboat division.

Of perhaps greater significance than the election of officers and Ryan's future status, however, will be the union's decision on its future course.

The ILA-AFL, chartered by the parent organization after oustering Ryan's union, is making a strong bid for east coast dockworkers' membership.

Autonomous Rights With Guarantees of Interests Are Demanded by Newspaper

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 16 (AP)—Yugoslavia's price for a peaceful settlement of its dispute with Italy over Trieste was raised substantially today on the basis of a responsible interpretation of this country's position.

In a front page editorial, the newspaper Borba, voice of the ruling Communist Party, emphatically declared Yugoslavia would regard any immediate move by Italy to take over the port city of Trieste itself as "an act of aggression" unless and until a final settlement has been reached.

Further, Borba insisted, with such a final settlement the strategic Adriatic port city, even if handed over to Italian sovereignty, must be given autonomous rights with guarantees for the protection of "economic and other interests" of countries, including Yugoslavia.

Proposal Not Mentioned

In a major speech here yesterday, President Tito failed to mention his previous proposal for an autonomous Trieste port, although, according to Yugoslav's readiness to surrender its claims upon the city provided this country is allowed to annex the rest of Zone A.

Aside from a demand for solid guarantees of protection for minority populations, Tito made no reference when and how Italy might take over the port city, nor to any other specific conditions on the transfer to Italian officials.

In an atmosphere of confusion and uncertainty which followed, the newspaper Borba called a meeting of its editorial board to draft a statement on this country's position. Presumably, top ranking Yugoslav foreign policy makers were consulted before the final draft was completed.

Envoys Called In

In the meantime, Yugoslav Foreign Secretary Koca Popovic and Ales Bebler, his top aide, called in the diplomatic envoys of Britain, France and the United States for a late and unusual Sunday night conference. There has been no official disclosure on what took place at this meeting beyond the general statement that it dealt with the talks of arranging a conference between the three western powers and the two Adriatic neighbors on the Trieste problem.

CIO's Annual Convention To Be Snubbed by McDonald

Cleveland, Nov. 16 (AP)—The CIO headed into an annual convention today publicly criticizing the Eisenhower administration but with an important CIO leader planning to snub the convention to attend meetings of an Eisenhower-appointed tariff committee.

David J. McDonald, whose plans haven't always jibed with those of CIO President Walter Reuther, was reported ready to stay away from most of the important convention sessions. McDonald heads the powerful CIO Steelworkers Union.

Reuther publicly proclaimed in an advance report to the convention that all was harmonious in the CIO family. In fact, Reuther's report said CIO leaders "are working together in quiet, constructive cooperation."

His report contained frequent criticisms of the Eisenhower administration and declared it appeared to "channel its thinking

Philadelphia, Nov. 16 (AP)—Rep. Harold Velde (R-III.), chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, said today he planned to press for a new law that would deny a government contract to any firm that recognizes and deals with a Communist-dominated union.

Velde made the comment during hearings by a subcommittee into alleged Communist activities among teachers in Philadelphia. Sifting with Velde were Reps. Kit Clardy (R-Mich.) and Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.).

Area Police Seek Auto, 2 Couples, On Man's Charge

New Yorker Was Forced to Drive Quartet From Manhattan to Po'keepsie

Local and Poughkeepsie police yesterday sought an automobile with two couples who are charged with having forced a New York man to drive them upstate from the city at gunpoint.

John Winn, 53, of 227 58th street, New York, told Poughkeepsie police, he had met the group at a Manhattan tavern, had spent some time at the apartment of one of them, and then was ordered to drive them to Kingston.

Told to Yield Registration

Winn's report to the Poughkeepsie police indicated stops at restaurants and taverns on the way up from New York and at one in Poughkeepsie before, as Winn said, one of the group with a .32 calibre revolver, ordered him to hand over his registration. They went on with the car, he said.

The report to the Poughkeepsie police was at 9:51 p. m., and at 10:20 p. m., local police entered a blotter note saying that the New York man claimed he "was forced at gunpoint to drive two men and two women originally to Kingston."

Took 1940 Sedan

The local report said Winn "persuaded the group to drive instead to Poughkeepsie" where Winn was left and the group took his 1940 Nash sedan. The only part remembered of the registration number was that it started with 8U.

The Poughkeepsie report said the car was believed headed toward Kingston and Officers Francis Buchanan and William Slover were dispatched to the Rondout creek bridge.

The Poughkeepsie report indicated that after Winn and the group had left the Manhattan tavern at about 2:30 a. m., he was followed to his home and taken to the apartment of one of them where he slept until 11 a. m., yesterday, and then was told he was going to drive them to Kingston. He indicated to Poughkeepsie police that he was under guard in the apartment.

Winn claimed, the Poughkeepsie report said, that he was not familiar with the names of the group but one of the men was known as Lou and one of the women was called Pat.

Query Is Made

Hall, who appeared on a CBS television program, was asked whether Brownell's charges in the White case were the first of a series. He said that so far as he knew there were no other similar cases pending. Asked if he knew about the White case in advance, Hall replied that the GOP committee had been informed shortly before Brownell first made the charges on Nov. 6.

On Capitol Hill, observers said that if additional charges do develop to prolong the attack on former Democratic administrations, Democrats might be forced into a position of giving President Eisenhower's legislative proposals the kind of cool reception that Truman's got in the GOP-controlled 80th Congress.

It is plain that no major Eisenhower proposal can be enacted in the almost evenly divided Congress without some Democratic votes. Just how willing these Democrats will be to yield the necessary votes remains to be seen.

Criticism Made

It was significant perhaps that such Democratic critics of Truman as Sen. Russell (Ga.) and Ellender (La.) have reacted adversely to Brownell's charges. Russell said the White case was revived "in an unseemly dash to catch the headlines."

Ellender said that before the Republicans are through, they are going to find they have committed a blunder, particularly in abortive efforts to require testimony from Truman.

"I'm sure Harry Truman hasn't anything to hide," Ellender declared.

From party members more charitable to Truman's political views came new blasts at the Republicans.

Sen. Monroney (Okla.) said the GOP had picked up the tactics of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) and made them a part of the party's campaign creed.

"I've been around the country extensively and it's my view that McCarthy's star has set," Monroney declared. "The 'big fear' is dead and they are not going to scare anybody with the White

Brownell Has His Time for Rebuttal in Senate Committee in White Case

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—Some Democrats in Congress rallied behind former President Truman today as he prepared to discuss the Harry Dexter White case tonight on radio and television (11 p. m.).

Although there were some dissenters, the minority party seemed to be drawing closer in a development that could spell trouble for the Eisenhower administration's program in the next session of Congress.

Atty. Gen. Brownell has promised further disclosures beyond the White case, in which he charged that Truman promoted White to be U. S. director of the International Monetary Fund after the FBI told Truman White was a spy.

Truman, who has said no such thing happened, reports to the nation tonight in a speech which, he has said, will "tell all the facts." He said in Independence, Mo., last night that Director J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI attended a conference at which White's fate was discussed. But Truman did not specify the time of the conference or say who else attended.

Brownell to Testify

Brownell has an opportunity for rebuttal tomorrow (2:30 p. m.) when he testifies before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee on the case.

White was named to the Monetary Fund Position early in 1946. He served for more than a year and then, by Truman's account, was fired by being allowed to resign. White died in 1948 of a few days after testifying he was neither a Communist nor a spy.

Political figures disagreed in weighing the probable effect of the case on next year's elections for control of Congress. Chairman Leonard W. Hall of the Republican National Committee said yesterday the issue of communism in government.

Asked if he knew about the White case in advance, Hall replied that the GOP committee had been informed shortly before Brownell first made the charges on Nov. 6.

On Capitol Hill, observers said that if additional charges do develop to prolong the attack on former Democratic administrations, Democrats might be forced into a position of giving President Eisenhower's legislative proposals the kind of cool reception that Truman's got in the GOP-controlled 80th Congress.

It is plain that no major Eisenhower proposal can be enacted in the almost evenly divided Congress without some Democratic votes. Just how willing these Democrats will be to yield the necessary votes remains to be seen.

Verdict Withheld In Death of Man; Is Found Sunday

James McSwain, 51, was found dead on the floor of the Edmund L. Gobel Dairy Farm barn near Benton's Corners, town of Gardiner, where he was employed, about 4:30 p. m. Sunday, Coroner Francis J. McCordie reported.

He was pronounced dead by Dr. Hans Dittels of Pine Bush, who was summoned when others on the farm discovered McSwain lying on the floor and bleeding from a cut in the head, the coroner said.

Fall Is Suspected
An autopsy performed at the S. Parks Glenn Funeral Home in New Paltz disclosed the wound was superficial and cause of death has not been determined. The first theory, that he had fallen from the hay loft to the concrete floor, was discounted as a result of the post mortem examination. Coroner McCordie said. A verdict has been withheld pending further laboratory reports.

McSwain is survived by his wife, Anna. The funeral will be held from the S. Parks Glenn Funeral Home, Prospect street, New Paltz, Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. Burial will be in New Paltz.

The color guard from Kingston Post, 150, American Legion, included Commander Thomas Saccoman, Robert Zimer, Leon Cady, Daniel Bittner, Jr., Anthony Galotta, Jules X. Albertini and Harry Whitney. The firing squad, which fired three volleys over the flag-draped casket, was from the Ulster Detachment, Marine Corps League and was composed of John R. Mayone, Pfc. Donald W. Chase, Pfc. Robert L. Post and John Naccarato. Taps were sounded by John R. Mayone after which the flag was presented to the widow of Cpl. White on behalf of the U. S. Government by Sergeant First Class Orman N. Wilcox, government escort who accompanied the body of Cpl. White from the Brooklyn Distributing Depot. Bearers, members of Joyce-Schick Post, 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars, were Richard Davis, junior vice-commander; Elton Doughty, Donald Johnson, Ernest Scribner, John J. Dittus and William Hagendorn. While the body of Cpl. White rested in the funeral home many friends called to pay their respects to the bereaved family and to offer condolences. Among them were officials of the Town of Ulster led by Supervisor Percy Bush. Cpl. White entered service July 7, 1952, from the town of Ulster.

Fire Demolishes Saugerties Road Hotel

Firemen play their hoses on the kitchen side of the Schoenstatt Hotel Friday night in an effort to get at the flames inside of the building. As late as Sunday afternoon firemen from the Glasco Fire Company were still wetting down the smoldering ruins. The ill-fated hotel was a landmark on the Kingston-Saugerties road for more than 60 years. A kitchen frier was blamed for causing the blaze. (Freeman photo) see a delegation of Republican Senators later this afternoon who will make a final attempt to influence the veteran legislator to resign. Wicks said he had an appointment to see Sen. Henry Neddo, of Whitehall, previously named as the leader of a delegation of administration supporters designated to see Wicks.

Wicks to Quit

Expresses Confidence
Although Wicks' announced decision not to attempt to block a vacating Republican conference resolution seemed to spell his defeat, he expressed confidence on the eve of the showdown.

"I feel good," he declared. "I'm not at all worried. I haven't done anything wrong."
He added that:
1. He had not asked any senators to make a commitment in tomorrow's showdown.
2. He asked them, instead, "to keep their minds open, until they had heard 'my side of the story.'"
3. He would describe on the Senate floor—if necessary—in detail his conversation with Taylor at the Madison Square Garden boxing show in New York.

Reports Differ
There was some difference in reports of what the senatorial delegation would tell Wicks late today. Administration spokesmen said no ultimatum would be issued. Another Republican said he understood Wicks would be threatened with complete loss of political patronage unless he stepped down voluntarily.

The statement that no ultimatum would be given seemed to contradict the general administration attitude that "Wicks must go."

Decision to have a delegation call on Wicks in advance of a Republican conference preliminary to the beginning of a special legislative session was made last night at a conference called by State GOP Chairman Taylor.

Strategy for the closing hours of the Dewey-Wicks battle, in which Gov. Dewey demands Wicks' resignation because of the Kingston senator's visits to labor extortionist Joseph Fay in Sing Sing prison were determined in high level GOP conference last night.

Full details were carefully guarded, but it was learned reliably that a Republican senatorial delegation expected to call on Wicks today. Still attempting to handle an explosive situation with care, leaders said reports that Wicks would be given an ultimatum were "too strong."

Position Contradicted
However, the Republican administration position contradicted this statement, Rep. Dean Taylor, Republican state chairman, and others close to Dewey have made no secret of their determination that "Wicks must go."

One report said that Sen. Henry Neddo, of Whitehall, would lead a delegation of senators to Wicks' office in the capitol. Wicks is acting lieutenant governor by virtue of his GOP Senate leadership and the resignation of Lt. Gov. Frank C. Moore.

It is known that Taylor has been canvassing the field of GOP senators in an attempt to determine which lawmakers will be appalled to lead the fight, publicly, to oust Wicks.

Those at Conference
Those attending last night's conference included Neddo, George Metcalf, Auburn; Walter J. Mahoney, Buffalo; John H. Hughes, Syracuse; Austin Erwin, Genesee; Warren Anderson, Birmingham; and Earl Brydges, Niagara Falls.

One of the senators at the meeting, who declined to be quoted by name, said he thought Taylor was "a little optimistic" in predicting earlier that at least 32 of the 37 GOP senators would vote against retaining Wicks as leader. He estimated the number would be between 27 and 30.

Wicks today declined to see newsmen, but his office indicated there might be a statement later in the day.

Dewey was expected in his office early this afternoon after spending the weekend at his farm in Pawling.

Close associates of the embattled Wicks pictured him as unwilling in his resolve to take his case to the Senate floor, despite heavy pressure upon him to resign and thereby avert an open showdown at Tuesday's special session of the Legislature.

A new statement from Wicks, reportedly directing new fire on Gov. Dewey, was expected last night, but did not materialize.

Final Bulletin

Albany, Nov. 16 (AP)—A floor battle for survival was indicated today by Acting Lt. Gov. Arthur H. Wicks after he said he would not rule against consideration by a Republican Senate conference of a resolution declaring he no longer was Senate leader.

Republican leaders profess they have enough votes to approve the party resolution. Wicks re-iterated today he would not resign. So, a GOP motion must be made and accepted on the Senate floor before he will be stripped formally of all his titles, including that of acting lieutenant governor.

The word was that the Senate majority leader's aides had a statement aimed, but decided not to release it, at least until today or tomorrow.

Might Give Statement
It was reported that Wicks might deliver the statement on the Senate floor if his engagement with the Dewey forces over the issue of his Sing Sing visits to labor extortionist Joseph S. Fay reached that point of no return.

As further fireworks were awaited in a political struggle of party-rocking intensity, speculation flowed in conflicting channels.

Some observers would not rule out the possibility that Wicks might retire from the field if a large majority of fellow Republicans in the Senate refused to go along with him at a conference called for 11 a. m. Tuesday, just before the Legislature convenes.

Charged as AWOL

Albert P. Policastro, 24, of Glasco was arrested there Saturday afternoon by Deputy Sheriffs Thomas Mayone and Albert Eisele on a charge that he was absent without leave from the U. S. Army. He was held at the Ulster county jail until he was turned over to Army Corporal Ray E. Shelter.

High Falls Youth Is Seriously Hurt When Hit by Truck

David Taylor, 12, was seriously injured when he was struck by a pickup truck near his home in High Falls about 9:05 a. m. Saturday, state police reported.

Troopers said the boy suffered a fractured left leg, fractured skull, concussion and possible internal injuries. He was taken to Kingston Hospital and later transferred to Albany.

The boy was crossing from the west to the east side of the road when he was struck by the front end of a pickup truck owned by August Bergemann and operated by Otto Bergemann, 37, also of High Falls, troopers said. No arrest was made.

To Hold Election

West Hurley Fire District, No. 1, West Hurley, will hold its annual meeting and election at the firehouse, West Hurley, Tuesday, December 1, at 7 o'clock. Polls will remain open until 10 p. m. Elected at the meeting will be commissioners to fill out a five, four, three, two and one year unexpired term and a treasurer for a two year term. Candidates for office shall file their names with the secretary, Allen M. Rowe, at least ten days prior to the meeting.

Held on Gun Charge

Russell Merrihew, 19, of Hurley, was arrested on Saturday by Sgt. Arthur A. Reilly, BCI, of the Kingston state police barracks on a charge of possession of a dangerous weapon. Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Clarence Rappleyea, Merrihew waived examination and was ordered held for grand jury action. State police alleged Merrihew had no permit to carry the gun, which they described as a blank gun drilled out to fit a .22 calibre bullet.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to stop bleeding—without surgery. In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations. Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place. And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing. All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

Now this new healing substance is offered in ointment form for hemorrhoids under the name Preparation H.* The price is only 98¢ a tube including an applicator. The name to ask for is Preparation H—at all drug stores. And remember—if not entirely satisfied—your money will be refunded promptly.

Meetings Are Held On Damages Done To School Buses

Meetings were held last week at Tillson and Rosendale to discuss recent reports of damage done inside school buses.

Parents, students, school district officials, sheriff's office representatives and a representative of the Van Gonsic bus company attended the meetings, one held Thursday night at Tillson and the other Friday night at Rosendale. Sheriff Cluett Schantz, Under-sheriff Clayton Vredenburg and County Investigator Arthur H. Brown explained the seriousness of the reported vandalism and possible consequences to offenders and, in the case of those under 16, to their parents.

Head Covers Silt
The sheriff's office investigation began when bus company officials reported that five or six head covers were silt and two seats damaged so badly they had to be removed from the vehicles. County Investigator Brown and Identification officer Earl Conro were assigned to ride the buses and subsequently obtained the names of several children who had been causing disturbances. The names were not made public and no arrest was made.

Brown and Sheriff Schantz both reported the meetings appeared to have accomplished their purpose of obtaining the cooperation of students and parents. The sheriff's men remained after the meetings to answer questions and to consult with those who wished to do so.

Killed were Louis Ewing, 27, Robert J. McMichael, 30, and Joseph Hughes, Jr., 25, all of Chicago. The other agents were George Davis, 39, in critical condition, and John Medary, 27, both of Chicago.

DEMOCRATIC VICTORIES

The national high command of the Republican Party has been given plenty to think about by the Democrats' upset victories in New Jersey.

From the GOP viewpoint, the most provocative result ought to be the triumph of a Democrat, Harrison Williams, by a narrow margin in the 6th New Jersey congressional district. This outcome was probably more significant than the Democratic capture of the 9th Wisconsin district seat a few weeks ago.

Never since it was carried out in 1932 had this New Jersey bailiwick gone Democratic. While this seemed to be true also in the Wisconsin case, the fact was that the "Republican" who had won the seat steadily was a former Progressive of the LaFollette stripe.

In 1952, Republican Clifford Case won the 6th New Jersey district by 54,500 votes, a margin 10,000 greater than President Eisenhower amassed there. The Democrats honestly did not expect to take this spot.

The New Jersey congressional verdict indicates some sort of public dissatisfaction is afoot—with Congress, or the Eisenhower administration, or both. There was no farm issue; the district is industrial. More detailed study of the area may soon throw more light on the factors involved.

It was also a surprise, of course, that the Democrats recaptured the New Jersey governorship, but special elements in that race markedly weakened its value as a gauge of national sentiment.

The Republican candidate, Paul Troast, proved a less forceful candidate than GOP leaders had hoped. Observers believe his cause was harmed when it was disclosed he had written New York's Governor Dewey a letter asking executive clemency for Joseph Fay, convicted labor extortionist now serving a term in the state penitentiary. And gambling and racketeering charges which touched the incumbent GOP administration could not have helped.

Basically, the governor race was fought on state issues. But Republican leaders advertised the Troast campaign as a test of Eisenhower strength, and the President had given the candidate his blessing, albeit, somewhat confusedly.

The size of Robert Meyner's victory suggests that voters may also have been expressing some of the same dissatisfaction noted in the state's congressional race. Other scattered mayoralty victories for the Democrats in places like Buffalo, Akron and Davenport, Iowa, may possibly reflect this feeling, too.

On the other hand, there is not felt to be much immediate national meaning in the Democratic capture of the mayor's chair in New York, a predominantly Democratic city. It may have bearing later, however, on Democratic efforts to regain the governorship and put New York state back in the Democratic column in the presidential battle in 1956.

Republicans had high hopes of scoring in the governor race in Virginia, but fell short by about 40,000 votes. Nevertheless, the GOP choice, Theodore Dalton, was impressive. His 181,000 votes contrast notably with the 38,000 recorded by the Republican who ran in 1949. Virginia, of course, has long been traditional Democratic soil.

ATOMIC PATENT

The Atomic Energy Commission has released the basic patent on nuclear reactors for use by private industry without royalty. Several other steps are under consideration to stimulate the industrial use of atomic energy. Congress will get a chance to vote on whether private firms should be allowed to build and operate atomic power plants.

The time must surely come when the vast power source of the atom will be put to peaceful use. It is impossible to predict how much difference that will make in our civilization, how many improvements will follow in production and transportation. Discoveries of new power sources have always heralded eras of progress.

All this will depend on whether war can

THE RETURN OF SLAVERY

Los Angeles, Nov. 15—In ancient times, slavery was, in a manner, justified on the ground that those who were conquered in war could be deprived of their rights and dignities because of the failure of their country. It was a substitute for putting prisoners of war to death. It is a mark of civilization to care for prisoners of war mercifully and to restore them to their own country.

The great moralist, Edward Westermarck, defines slavery as "essentially an industrial institution, which implies compulsory labor beyond the limits of family relations. The master has a right to avail himself of the working power of his slave, without previous agreement on the part of the latter."

The 19th century marked a great advance in the battle against slavery. The War Between the States ended the system in the United States; serfs were emancipated everywhere on the continent of Europe including Russia. Movements were started to limit or abolish slavery in Africa and Asia.

Slavery is being restored and the real peril is that not only are the Russians enslaving their own people, but, for limited periods, prisoners of war. Article I of the Corrective Labor Code of Soviet Russia states:

"The task of the penal policy of the proletariat during the period of transition from capitalism to Communism is to protect the dictatorship of the proletariat and the Socialist construction it is undertaking against encroachments by class-hostile elements and infractions not only by declass elements but also by unstable elements among the workers."

Article I of the Penal Code states: "The aim of the penal legislation of the R.S.F.S.R. (Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic) shall be to protect the Socialist State of the workers and peasants and the established legal order therein against acts which constitute a danger to society."

These offenses are political, intellectual and spiritual. As the Russian state is organized on an ideological basis, opposition can be in the realm of ideas. Andrei Vishinsky, the prosecutor of the purge trials and the permanent representative of his country at the United Nations, put it this way: "Soviet Socialist law aims at overcoming the opposition of class enemies and their agents to the cause of Socialism, at ensuring the completion of Socialist construction and the gradual transition to Communism."

Persons guilty of such crimes are sent to labor colonies where they are deprived of their liberties and set to work as slaves. For class enemies, punishment is exile with corrective labor.

In a word, slavery is employed as a political weapon for the suppression of dissent and difference. It could be used against Bolsheviks with whom Stalin differs or Malenkov now differs. Actually Article VI of the Penal Code so states:

"The number of slaves in Russia is not exactly known and will not be known unless some international body is permitted to make an investigation, which will not happen. It has been estimated that as many as 20,000,000 persons are now slaves."

Such slaves are used in building canals, railroads, roads, digging gold and other metals including uranium. A committee of the United Nations reports:

"In the committee's view it would therefore seem to be established that the work of prisoners, particularly in corrective labour camps and colonies, is used in the Soviet Union for essential tasks in the interests of the national economy, and that the part it plays is of considerable significance."

It is known that the Soviet government has engaged in large-scale deportations of persons from their own country to labor camps. There have been accusations of this nature since the end of World War II with regard to Transylvanians, Hungarians and Czechs. Large numbers of Lithuanians, Latvians and Estonians have been deported from their homelands to Siberia. Precisely how truthful these reports are, I do not know, but documents are available to show that dissenters were ordered sent to "distant places in the U.S.S.R."

It is also known that large numbers of Germans and Japanese were detained in labor camps for long periods of years following the end of World War II. Some Germans taken in the war have only just been released. We do not know and it has not been reported to the American people how many Americans, missing in the Korean War, are being detained in slave labor camps."

The use of slavery is barbarous and its restoration a horror in our times.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

DIABETES MAY BE PRESENT

I have written before about a physician who, while awaiting a tardy patient coming in for a sugar test of his urine, tested his own urine for sugar and found the percentage high, indicating that he himself had diabetes. He immediately cut down on his starches and administered injections of insulin. Finally, by sticking closely to a diet, he reached a stage where he did not need insulin to free his urine of sugar. While in all cases the blood also should be examined to rule out diabetes, this is not always done.

In The Journal of the American Medical Association, Drs. E. F. McCullough and R. E. Zwickel, Cleveland Clinic, and Frank E. Bunts, Educational Institute, state that for the past 30 years it has been the practice of our group to perform routine sugar tests on all new patients. Because we believe that this is an important method of detecting diabetes, we are presenting the results we obtained. Our method is advocated for general use in office patients. A total of 2,357 consecutive patients entering all services of the Cleveland Clinic constitutes the basis of this survey. The majority of these patients were adults, many past middle age. They applied for care during a four-week period, January 10 to February 7, 1951. The total includes 57 patients who had either symptoms of diabetes or previously recognized diabetes that would have led to a diagnosis of diabetes on their first examination.

Blood examinations were made of all patients including those whose sugar in urine was above normal. In all patients with blood sugar above normal, in whom it was practical, a glucose (sugar) tolerance test was made. If this was not possible, a blood sugar determination was repeated two and one-half to three hours after a meal and an attempt was made to have the meal contain 100 mg. of carbohydrate, which is rich in sugar. The sugar tolerance test shows whether the blood holds too much sugar, withholding it from use by the body processes.

There were 113 patients with no history of diabetes in whom tests showed some degree of excess sugar in the blood, yet no excess sugar in the urine. These cases would not have been recognized as diabetes if the blood sugar tests had not been made.

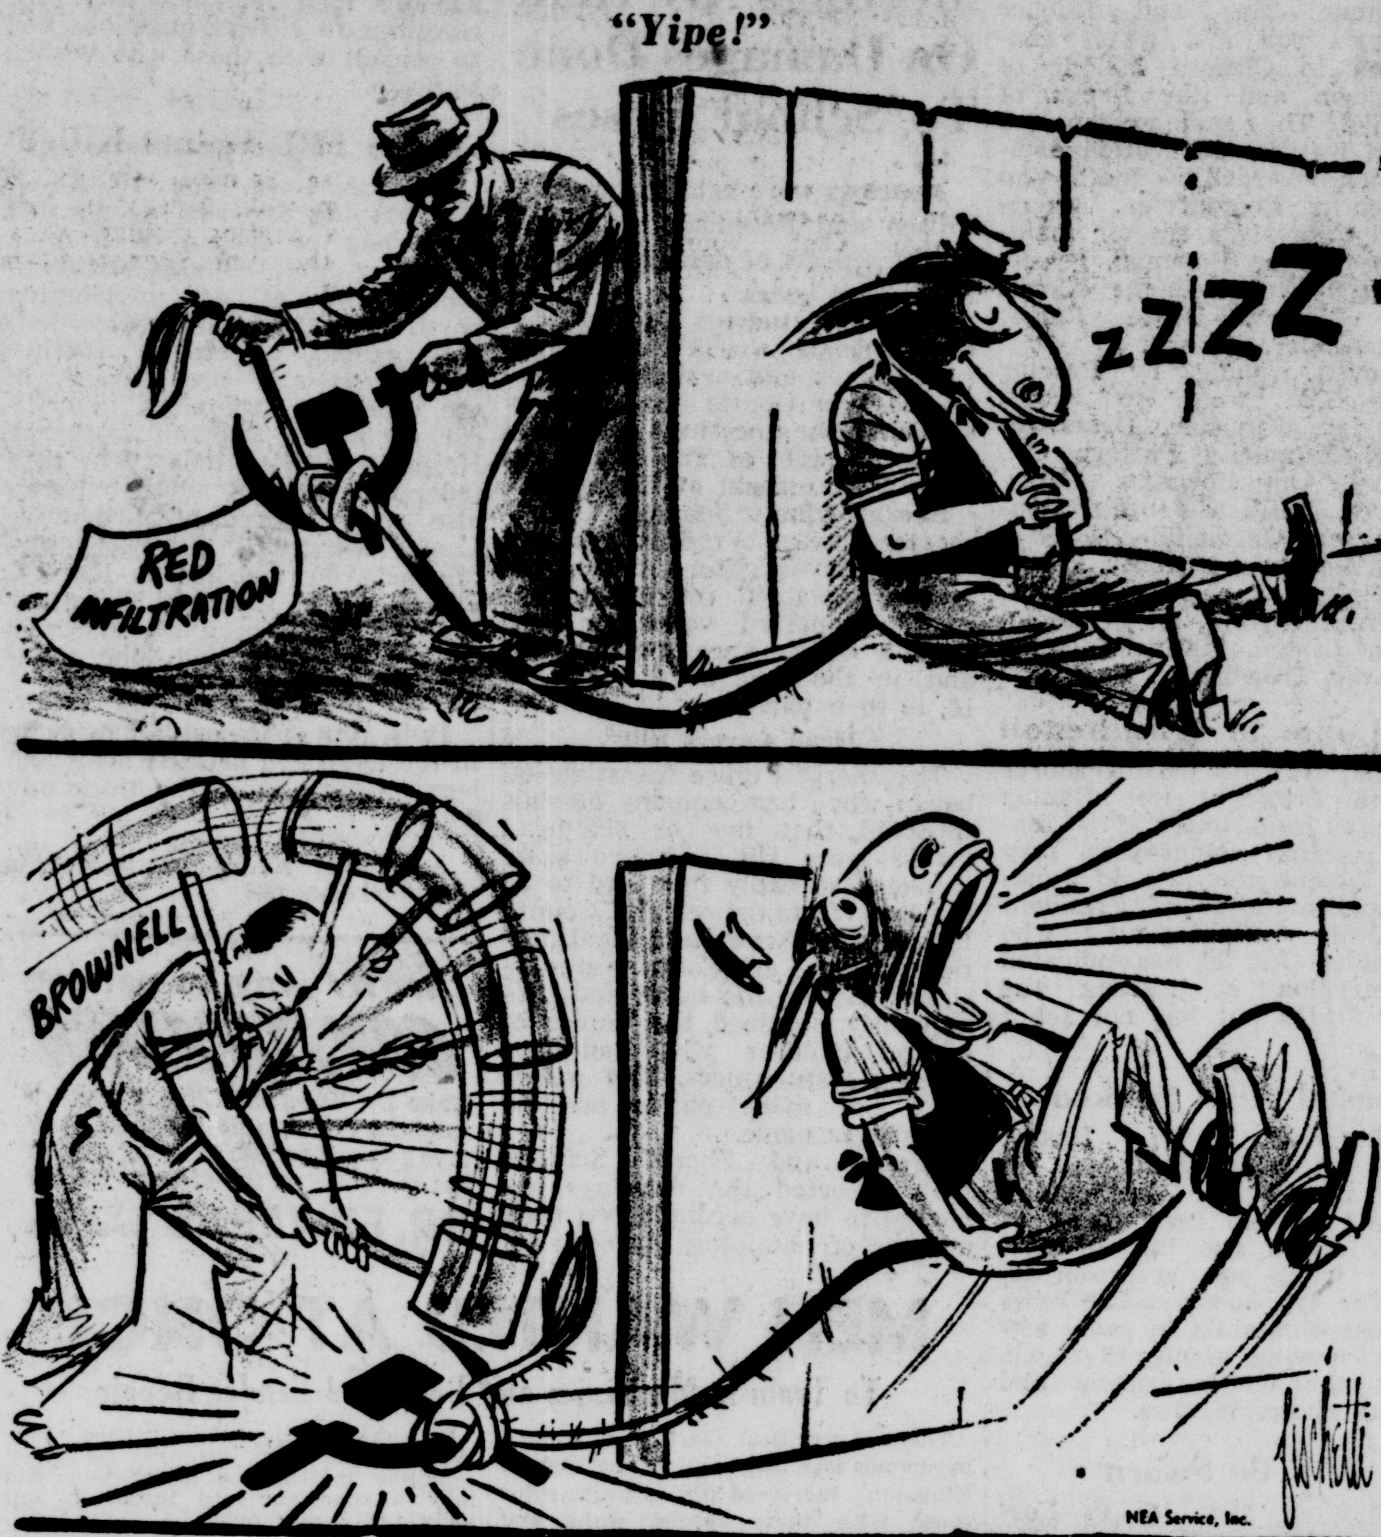

Unfortunately, diabetes often shows little or no symptoms as a little extra fluid taken or extra urine passed, does not disturb the patient. Drs. McCullough and Zwickel suggest that routine blood sugar tests be performed at random among patients entering office or clinic for a general physical examination.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington, (NEA)—What to do about the 36 American airmen who, under prolonged Communist torture, were forced to make false confessions that the United States used germ warfare in Korea provides one of the toughest problems in morale, discipline and human relations that ever confronted military authorities.

Decisions in these cases are complicated by the fact that another 40 airmen refused to make false affidavits even though at least five of them had been subjected to torture which wrung false confessions of germ warfare use out of the 36. There is little dispute over what should be done for those who did not give in to the inhuman Communist treatment.

This included long imprisonment in holes in the ground, days without food and water, hanging by hands and feet and even the facing of a fire squad. Any man who can withstand such barbarity is entitled to the country's highest decoration for bravery.

No one has proposed that medals be hung on the men who finally weakened and in desperation signed the false statements. These men may have suffered just as much as the men who did not give in. But they did not live up to the highest traditional standards of military honor.

Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia, ranking Democrat on the Senate Armed Services committee, has written Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson that these men should be separated from the service with other than honorable discharge.

Normal Lives Again

Retired Gen. George C. Kenney of the Air Force, taking a more charitable view, believes that these men deserve every opportunity to resume normal military or civilian careers.

Military authorities fear this course would set a bad precedent by pardoning disloyalty, providing a bad example for other military men who may be placed in similar circumstances in the future.

On the other side of the argument, the example is cited of the Civil War sentry who fell asleep at his post, but was saved from a firing squad by President Lincoln's pardon.

The records of the young Air Force and Marine officers—before their capture and before they were tortured into making false statements of germ warfare use—makes judgment all the more difficult.

Six of the younger officers were pilots and navigators whose planes were shot down in action over North Korea. They are:

Second Lieut. Floyd B. O'Neil, of Fairfax, S. C.
First Lieut. Bobby E. Hammett, 24, New Augusta, Miss.
First Lieut. Kenneth L. Enoch, 28, Washington, Pa.
First Lieut. Paul R. Kniss, 26, Monmouth, Ill.
First Lieut. William L. Fornes, 25, Allfax, Ky.

All have had more than five years' service. Hammett and Enoch are World War II veterans. Hammett, Enoch and Kniss have been awarded the Air Medal for combat action over North Korea. Fornes holds additionally the Silver Star for shooting down a MIG after a low-level attack on a railroad bridge.

Col. Andrew J. Evans, Jr., 35, of Charleston, S. C., is a West Point graduate of 1941. He commanded a fighter group in Europe during World War II and rose to become executive officer to the Air Force Chief of Staff. Assigned to Korea in 1952, he became deputy commander of a fighter bombing wing. He has 152 combat missions to his credit.

Distinguished Careers

Col. Walker M. Mahurin, 35, of

Fort Wayne, Ind., was one of the early World War 2 aces. He is credited with 148 missions and 22 enemy planes shot down. He has had planes shot from under him in both Europe and Korea.

Col. Frank H. Schwable was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1929 and has been a marine pilot since 1931, serving in Nicaragua, all through the Pacific campaigns of World War 2, and in Korea. He was held in solitary confinement from July 8, 1952, when he was shot down over North Korea, until his release in September, 1953.

Maj. Roy H. Bley, 39, of Cabool, Mo., is a Marine Corps "mustang" who enlisted as a private 18 years ago and was commissioned as second lieutenant in 1942. In World War 2 he was a transport pilot in all the Pacific campaigns. He finally got jet training though he was over 30, which is old for that trade. He has also qualified as a test pilot. Sent to Korea in May, 1952, he was reported missing in action three months later. The marine corps officially classifies him as an "outstanding" officer.

Considering the exceptional service records of all these officers, it will take a hard interpretation of military justice to end their military careers with dishonorable discharge now.

Truman Failed to Give All Facts in Letter to House Committee

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 16—Former President Truman did not state all the facts last week when he wrote the House Un-American Activities Committee citing a long list of precedents in an attempt to justify his refusal to honor a subpoena issued in due form by the committee chairman.

Mr. Truman cited only the refusals of presidents who at the time were actually in office when Congress asked them for information. He failed to cite at all the most important precedent in the records of Congress, which shows that John Tyler, 15 months after he left the White House, did testify before a House committee in response to its request for information.

Curiously enough, a somewhat parallel issue had arisen then. It concerned the use of funds by a former secretary of state, Daniel Webster, who had set up what was an FBI of those days to conduct detective work in connection with the activities of agents of foreign governments. The controversy was whether Mr. Webster had used the funds for the purpose Congress had in mind for political and business purposes. The majority report of the House committee, dated June 9, 1846, said:

"The committee have examined Mr. Tyler, the late President of the United States. He testified that when he came into the presidency, he found the foreign relations of the country in a very delicate condition in certain particulars, which the committee do not deem it expedient to specify, requiring, in his opinion, the employment of confidential agents; and, for reasons assigned by him to the committee, he regarded his secretary of state (Daniel Webster) as the fittest person to select and employ them."

To minority report, which disagreed with the findings on the use of the money, also mentioned "the testimony of ex-President Tyler."

Thus it is plain that the Congress of the United States, on a matter of great delicacy involving espionage as well as the proper use of federal funds, and the integrity of subordinate officials, has felt that it had right to examine a former President of the United States.

Mr. Truman's decision to "tell all the facts" to a television and radio audience is not a satisfactory substitute for an examination by a committee of Congress. Here are some of the questions which members of Congress might have asked Mr. Truman, and anyone will be able to see whether in his speech Mr. Truman has answered any or all of them:

1. Did Mr. Truman himself actually read the FBI report of February 4, 1946, to which his secretary of state, James F. Byrnes, called his attention by letter?

2. If Mr. Truman did not read the document, whose summarization or evaluation did he accept as the basis for his decision not to fire Harry Dexter White?

3. If Mr. Truman decided to keep White on in the government for purposes of surveillance, why did he not tell J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI, about it?

4. Did he direct his attorney general, Tom Clark, to do so?

4. If Mr. Truman decided in his own mind not to fire White and to keep on watching him, why was no record of that decision made anywhere in the government, not even in the files of the Treasury Department, where the secretary of the Treasury, the late Fred M. Vinson, would naturally be interested in recording it?

5. Why, if it was decided to keep White on in the government, was he permitted to take along with him to the monetary fund subsidiaries in the Treasury who, in the FBI reports, had also been accused of involvement in the Communist espionage ring?

6. Why did Mr. Truman tell the reporters last week that he would have to consult his files in Kansas City to refresh his recollection on the White case, and what right has a President of the United States to take away to his private residence from the government files any documents or papers that belong to the government?

7. If Mr. Truman has in his possession today any files on the White case, does he contend that this action—taken by him as a private citizen—is not subject to the subpoena power of Congress and does he feel that he has a right now to refuse to tell Congress exactly what the papers are or what is in them?

8. Did Mr. Truman ever ask the FBI for any reports on White's activities after White left the Treasury Department and began his work on the monetary fund?

9. Did Mr. Truman know that White, while an official of the monetary fund, used his position inside the government organization in Washington to recommend for employment in the government persons whose loyalty had been questioned?

10. Did Mr. Truman ever acquaint himself with the facts as to why the grand jury, in 1948, was unable for technical reasons under existing espionage laws to indict White? And if Mr. Truman knew this, why did he not during his subsequent four years in the White House tell the Congress of the need for strengthening the espionage laws to cover up such loopholes?

11. Since Mr. Truman argued, as Mr. Byrnes says, that because White had been confirmed by the Senate he could not hold up the issuance of a commission, why did Mr. Truman—because of a political feud last year—refuse at any time to issue a commission to a United States attorney for Nevada who had been confirmed many months before by the United States Senate?

The foregoing questions do not impute disloyalty or sympathy with the Communists to Mr. Truman—that's a smokescreen raised by his apologists to divert attention from the incompetence, laxity, and looseness prevailing in the Truman administration on the matter of ridding the government of subversives. For it is important to remember that a man may still sit in a government post and give documents to an agent of a foreign government, and yet escape indictment under the weak espionage laws of today. That's why dismissal from government service on loyalty or security grounds has been and still is the only remedy available.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Nov. 15 — Harry Truman is the only person who has used the word "snollygoster" in the heterogeneous record of my memory and he couldn't resist temptation to add some nastiness to its original meaning. It is a poor slang word weak and silly like "banana oil" and that doubtless is the reason why it never gained circulation. The southern editor who tossed it off in 1895 intended it to describe a political aspirant who was without principle. His context was much better. He said a snollygoster was "a fellow who wins by sheer talk-nothing assumption." There is a flash of jabberwocky in that.

Determined to vindicate Baruch's appraisal of him as "a rube, a boob, an ignorant man," Truman often resorts wantonly to vulgarity. In this case he snarled that the charge he promoted a Russian spy to yet higher rank in the Truman administration after he was warned of the spy's treason, was "snollygosticism."

Then for laginaptee, he told the reporters that this was "a southern word meaning a man born out of wedlock." This was his way of saying that Herb Brownell, the attorney general, and Jim Hagerty, the press secretary of the White House, had been born out of wedlock. He is impervious to contempt and a worthy relative of his murderous uncle and cousin who were shot dead by a courageous frontier town marshal in Independence, Mo., as related for the historical record by the late George Creel, also of Missouri, as of Truman's own time.

Truman as President applied the term "S.O.B." to Drew Pearson for publication, the first President, as far as most of us know, who ever used this expression outside his privacy. For that matter he may have used the actual phrase for which these initials stand, but, if so, the press gave us the slightly less indecent version. Truman's grossness shows up in the fact that he took pains to tell the reporters what he meant, adding a flip which was not volunteered when he used the word "snollygoster" in a speech in 1952.

"Scalawag" was a real word of contempt in the south about the same time, but it has dictionary status, meaning "poor or small, Shetland title, or little value because of poor feeding qualities." In the political sense it meant a despicable southerner who threw in with the Republican carpetbaggers to persecute his own people during the Reconstruction. Old General Nathan Bedford Forrest, the founder of the first Ku Klux Klan, giving testimony to a congressional committee of inquiry, said a scalawag was "the sort of sheep in the flock." It is a much better word than "snollygoster."

"Lallygag" is a verb which was widely used in the midwest and perhaps elsewhere some years ago, which seems to have no defined meaning and no standing even as slang. However, it has long seemed to me to imply loafing and flirting by a male with a connotation of idle but not necessarily evil mischief. It sounds as though it may have come from Ireland in the potato-famine immigration. There were some Lallys on my mother's side and she sometimes used the word.

"Gallus" as an adjective, also was current in the midwest, but I find no trace of it in any convenient dictionary. I interpret "gallus" as a nostalgic reference by a male to his gay and romantic youth.

But it would not surprise me to

Gerber Convention Used to Advantage

By OSWALD JACOBY

Written for NEA Service

Some of my correspondents have asked me for a hand illustrating the Gerber Convention. I give them today's hand, in which I held the South in the recent Individual Tournament in Houston. My partner, Capt. L. A. Welsh, of the U. S. Coast Guard, used the Gerber Convention skillfully and put me in a strange slam contract. It was odd to play the hand at six spades without a trump in my hand.

Captain Welsh's jump to four clubs was a special slam convention, named after Johnny Gerber of Houston. Such a jump to four clubs does not promise a club suit; it merely asks partner to show how many aces he holds, very much like the Blackwood bid of four no-trump.

In responding to a Gerber bid of four clubs, you show no aces by bidding four diamonds; one ace, by bidding four hearts; two aces, by bidding four spades; and so on. In the hand shown today, for example, I showed two aces by bidding four spades.

Very often, your partner will know from this one response how high he wants to bid. In this case, my partner knew that one ace was missing and that a small slam was the limit of the hand. Even the small slam might have been set from his point of view, because he didn't know that I held the king of clubs, but he was willing to take a chance.

If the response to four clubs shows that the partnership has all four aces, the player who is doing the asking may find out about kings by making the cheapest possible bid. For example, if North had two aces in today's hand, he would know that all four aces were accounted for after South's response of four spades. North would then bid four no-trump, the cheapest bid after four spades. South would be able to show no kings with a bid of five clubs; one king, with five diamonds; and so on.

When today's hand was actually played in the tournament, most tables got to six spades, played from the North position. The opening lead of the queen of clubs defeated them very quickly. At my table, the slam was played from the South position. If West had opened a club, my king would have stopped the suit in time. West actually opened a diamond, and it was a cinch to win the first trick, ruff a low diamond in dummy, draw trumps, and then take the rest.

Marni and a co-worker combined to introduce MIT to freshmen coeds, by writing an article in how a girl feels in a school dominated by boys. A picture of the frosh coeds made front page with the story under it. Marni is one of 16 girls admitted to the freshman class at MIT for 1954.

27th Division Group Elects Albany Man

During the 33rd Reunion of the 27th Division Association held at Syracuse, Gilbert R. Sharp of Albany was elected commander. He succeeds Major Edward M. Maguire of Troy.

Commander Sharp served with the Second New York Infantry on the Mexican Border and with the 105th U. S. Infantry in World War I. He was cited for the conduct of a daylight patrol in the Battle of Vierstraet Ridge and wounded by machine gun fire in the Battle of the Hindenburg Line, both engagements in September 1918.

Sharp is a member of the American Legion and Disabled American Veterans. In the latter organization he has served as State Commander and National Vice Commander.

The 27th Division Association is open to those who served with the 27th Division in either World Wars I or II. Also eligible for membership are those men who have completed a full enlistment during peacetime. Those who may be interested can secure full information by writing the Association Secretary Lawrence Reagan, P. O. Box 1403, Albany.

Boy Cook Is Good

Jefferson City (AP)—Jim Bob Mobley of nearby Holt's Summit is only 8 and that ruled him out of the junior cooking competition at the county fair. So the son of Missouri's director of Resources and Development Division had to buck the competition provided by the farm women who've been cooking for quite a spell. His fudge brownies won the blue ribbon in the cookie division.

Field Trips Are Planned to Help TB Press Pupils

Students in nine junior and senior high schools in Ulster county will be finding out the answers as they start to work on the 17th annual nation-wide School Press Project sponsored by the National Tuberculosis Association, Columbia Scholastic Press Association, and locally by the Ulster County TB and Health Association. The steps for the project were announced today by Miss Katherine M. Murphy, executive secretary of the TB Association. The association's annual seal sale to raise funds for tuberculosis control opens Nov. 16.

So that students will know the work of the official agencies, as well as the voluntary agency in Ulster county, a special project of a field trip has been arranged by Miss Mary Mossman, health education assistant of the TB Association. Students from high and central schools in Wallkill, Kerhonkson, Ellenville, New Paltz, Woodstock, Marlborough, Myron J. Michael, Kingston and Oteora will visit the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital, the Kingston Laboratory and the office of the Ulster County TB and Health Association, to see at first hand the work of these agencies.

"Quality Is Remembered Long After Price Is Forgotten"

Home Sweet Home

By FRANK TRIPP

This is a report from the gripe department. Presented in the interest of fireside conversation and homey understanding. If you can resolve all of the items without scalping each other, you qualify for the $1,000 question; which is, "Who's boss around here?"

Does somebody in your house strangle tooth paste tubes? Wring their necks at the top till all the paste is at the bottom and squirts out the other end? Minor matter that can start a pretty day off screwy.

Do you have a lady around who does lovely needlework, accumulates leftovers of silken and woolen yarn? Is her pet disposal the ashtray next to your chair? Tossed-in cigarette butt sets up a smother like a smudge pot in an orange grove. Of course you shouldn't have used the ashtray for its intended purpose.

DO YOU get hold of the Sunday paper first, or by the time you get to it is the sports section in the dining room, the financial section in the hall, the society section in the kitchen, and has the page to which your story carries over been used to wrap the garbage? Don't blow your top. There are two outs: get a disposal, or buy two papers.

You had two car keys once; put one away carefully for an emergency. Someone got there first, put the spare in her purse, where she just put the other—and made off in a friend's car, shopping. Easy does it; phone for a taxi.

The guy who sold you that sleek streamlined car made much of the storage trunk in back; room enough to take along the kitchen sink. After you've skinned three pairs of shoes, corkscrewing into the back seat, you're wishing they'd put some of the room inside the car. With all the space there is outdoors, why do they do it?

YEP, THERE WERE a dozen postage stamps last time you looked. There are still a dozen, folded glue to glue and stuck together like the 12 thieves. You didn't do it but it's you who will steam 'em apart over the tea kettle. You'll find it fun.

Down at the office they can charge off their share of the help's social security tax. But for the help around your house, you can't. Silly—and a mite crooked. You can sell a $1,000 oil bond for a $250 profit and report it as a $125 long term gain. But when you cash a $1,000 government E bond it's straight "interest," $250 profit, and no foolin'. For why? It took ten years to earn it.

OF COURSE you and the little lady always agree on what to watch on TV, and never interrupt. Yet—

The cop had the villain cornered at the end of a hall, almost caught in "The Web," when Jonathan Blake butted in to fill his two trick drinking glasses with cigarette smoke.

Fanny got sore, and yelled, "Fool! While you're monkeying with those glasses, the murderer will get away!"—and he did. "I'm going to attend that broadcast sometime," I said. "What for?" she asked. "I want to switch those glasses on Blake," I told her. "Sure," she snapped, "you've always been handy with drinking glasses." I had asked for it.

I HOPE some day TV gets caught up on the reruns; that we get a final report on "the nose, throat and sinuses"; that the juries report verdicts in the cases of soaps vs. detergents, chlorophyll vs. enzymes, lanolin vs. lather—and CBS vs. NBC.

And I hope to heaven that Godfrey gets back on the job steady; before my womenfolks go nuts worrying about his condition. Seems they can always find out in the newspaper. And the ingrate hasn't once mentioned my varicose veins. Except as herein reported, it's been a lovely fall. (Copyright, 1953, General Features Corporation)

Cardinal Plans Clothing Drive

Francis Cardinal Spellman, citing the stark misery he himself has seen in Korea, China, the Far and Middle East and, in his recent trip abroad, among the poor refugees of Europe, appealed for support of the annual Thanksgiving Clothing and Money Collection in a pastoral letter read in all Catholic Churches Sunday.

Calling attention to conditions abroad, Cardinal Spellman said, "The stark misery is impossible to describe; so heartbreaking, so tragic, so terrible is the truth; little children dying in the roadways for want of food or medicine; homeless men, women and children literally in rags, literally starving, literally dying."

"During the week of America's Thanksgiving, November 22 to 29," the pastoral continued, "the Archdiocese of New York will again conduct an intensive campaign for clothing and money, actually to buy life for the sick and needy of the world, regardless of race, color or creed."

Cardinal Spellman asked for "warm, wearable clothing to keep the cold and suffering, from death by exposure; bedding and blankets to cover skeleton-thin men, women and children; money to buy food and medicines for the starving and suffering diseased."

STREET

Yesterday my Aunt Frieda called up and invited me to dinner. "Is tonight potted meat night," she said.

When I got to her Rivington street flat, I found the meatballs hadn't been potted.

My Uncle Charlie, however, was.

Face down, he was stretched out on the parlor couch, one shoe on and one off.

"He is drunk like a whole boat sailor," said my aunt. "He drank a full bottle cooking brandy."

"What made him do it?" I said.

"He is suffering from a bad case of humility," said Frieda. "You know—humility like it comes between the singing commercials."

"Tell it from the beginning," I said.

"Okie-duck," said my aunt. "Is a straight and forward story. Last night at 10 o'clock is taking place the election of officers at the Non-Sectarian Pinchle and Poker Club. Your uncle is deciding to be president, and so accordingly he is inviting to the house for dinner Mordecai Slifkin, his campaign manager, for the purpose Slifkin should practice up the nominating speech."

"Well, after the coffee Slifkin is getting on a chair and saying, 'Gentlemen, it is my privilege to place the election of officers at the Non-Sectarian Pinchle and Poker Club. Your uncle is deciding to be president, and so accordingly he is inviting to the house for dinner Mordecai Slifkin, his campaign manager, for the purpose Slifkin should practice up the nominating speech.'

"So Charlie and Mordecai are going to the meeting. There Slifkin is making his speech, and your uncle is rising on the platform and saying, 'My friends and wisher-wells, honored I am but fit I ain't. What you got to find is a man smarter, more good-looking, even, if possible, a better pinchle player. In all due respects, I am declining.'

"Well, Abe Greenfield, the competition, is not being fooled by Charlie's tricks. In the department of humility, he is holering, 'like in the department of pinchle, Charlie has got me beat to little frazzles. I likewise am declining.'

"Three times this is happening, and everyone is knowing it is a contest to see whose humility will wear out first. But suddenly up jumps a fly in the borscht—a nobody by the name Sam Pfeffer. 'Fella members, he is shouting, 'maybe being president of our club ain't good enough for these two high-tone gentlemen. Maybe they instead are wanting to be President of 48 states and also Alaska and Honolulu. Well, there is one chaplain in this room who ain't got a head too big to fill the president's boots—namely and to wit, yours truly, little Sammy Pfeffer.'

"Well, what happens," said Frieda, "ain't hard to guess. The members is putting it right away to a vote and Pfeffer is winning it landslide. The vote was anonymous, and so ever since your uncle has been drinking like a whitefish."

"Let him sleep it off," I said, "and he'll be good as new in the morning. I do think, though, you ought to open a window. It's kind of stuffy in here."

"It's better with the window closed," said my aunt. "Besides, if you are letting me make a joke, it ain't the heat what's bothering your uncle, it's the humility."

Choosing Curtain Fabric

When choosing a patterned curtain fabric, make sure that the size of the design in the curtain is in scale with the size of the room and its furnishings. For example, small designs in light colors are attractive in small rooms with small windows; but they look out of keeping in a large room with massive windows.

Jacoby on Canasta

Try New Form of Bolivia

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

Several correspondents have asked how the new game of bolivia is played by three people. The most interesting way to do so, in my opinion, is to adopt the "cut-throat" method, which is often used also for regular canasta and samba.

In a game of cut-throat, three separate scores are kept. Each player begins a hand on his own, without partners. As soon as any player takes the discard pile, however, the other two players become partners against him and are allowed to merge all their melds—whether or not these melds were made before they became partners.

The partnership continues until the end of that hand, and then the next hand begins again with each player on his own.

The two partners get the same score after a hand of cut-throat. The lone wolf, naturally, gets his own score. The partners score separately for their red threes, but otherwise get identical amounts.

Suppose, for example, that I play a hand against Mr. and Mrs. Brown. I take the discard pile, and eventually meld out with a total score of 3850 points. Mr. Brown has three red threes. Their combined melds, less the cards left in their hands, total 2740 points. Mr. Brown then gets credit for 2940, while his wife gets credit for 3040 on the score-pad.

Two partners playing together can usually make one or two sambas (sequence canastas) and perhaps a bolivia (canasta of wild cards) if they are allowed to play unmolested. The bonus for a samba is 1500 points, and that for a bolivia is 2500 points, so that the partnership can pile up a big score if the game goes on for very long.

In view of this big scoring opportunity for partners, a player who wants to take the discard pile should think twice—or perhaps thrice—about it. All will be well if he can meld out very quickly. If he cannot meld out quickly, he will probably be sorry he took the pile.

As an exception, however, you may wish to take a very large discard pile towards the end of a hand even if you cannot be sure of melding out quickly. For one thing, you may find the right cards in the pile to meld out immediately.

For another, you may be able to meld enough to compensate for the melds scored against you by the two opponents. And finally, the opponents may not be partners long enough to do you much damage if only a few cards are left in the stock pile.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in this column.

Charlotte McGraw To Explain Use Of Photographs

Miss Charlotte McGraw, professional photographer will address the members of the Association for Childhood Education at their fall meeting in the library of the George Washington School, on Wednesday afternoon, at 3:30 p. m.

Developing the general topic, Amateur Photography, Its Use in the Classroom, Miss McGraw will present in detail the actual procedure for making photographs, a printing process accomplished without the use of camera or film. The afternoon's demonstration will be of specific interest to all teachers since this process has a universal appeal to children of all ages and may be applied in innumerable projects within the classroom.

Miss McGraw brings to the afternoon lecture a wide experience in aerial, commercial and portrait photography. Pre-war years found Miss McGraw engaged in all phases of photography at her own studio in Hollywood, California.

Following this initial experience, Miss McGraw served as photographic officer in the WAC of the United States Army during the wartime era. General duty and special assignments under the direct command of General George Marshall led Miss McGraw to all theaters of operation overseas—in Europe, Africa, and the Philippines.

Concluding these adventuresome years, Miss McGraw joined the photographic staff of Life, Time, and Fortune. This venture took her to South America in the year 1946, where she concentrated upon commercial and industrial photography.

Miss McGraw returned to Kingston where she has become affiliated with the Aircraft Camera Shop. She is conducting a weekly course in photography at the Vocational Building in Kingston, under the auspices of the Adult Education program.

Prior to Miss McGraw's talk, a brief business session will be held. Miss Mary Polhemus, a member of the George Washington School faculty, and local chapter president, will preside.

Ulster Hose Will Sponsor Movie at Reade's Theatre

This Wednesday's Curtain at 8:40 show at Reade's Kingston Theatre will be sponsored by Ulster Hose Company No. 5. Featured will be The Sea Around Us, heralded as one of the screen's most fascinating pictures, and The Pennywhistle Blues.

The Sea Around Us is a film adaptation of Rachel L. Carson's unique best-seller and presents the story of creation and the Seven Seas in Technicolor, revealing scenes never before viewed by scientists and oceanographers. Irwin Allen, who produced and adapted the film, looked at 1,622,362 feet of film from sources all over the world before selecting the 5,552 feet which composes the finished product. Paul Sawtell provided the musical score and the accompanying commentary is by Don Forbes and Theodore Von Eltz.

Has Thrilling Scenes
Among the scenes is a thrilling sequence of a death battle between a shark and a giant octopus, a spear-fisher's encounter with the deadly moray eel, under water wonders revealed through the windows of the Barton diving bell on its record-breaking descent into the ocean.

The Pennywhistle Blues is an exuberant, laughing fable from South Africa. The cast was picked entirely from untrained natives. Much of their own singing and dancing is included. The story has a naive flavor appropriate to a fairy tale: a bungling thief hides his loot in a spot where it is found and accepted.

Poughkeepsie Defeats Kingston, 27-7, to Capture DUSO Title

Blues Complete Perfect Season for 4th Crown

Coach Sam Kalloch's powerful Poughkeepsie High School Blues came out of the dressing room for the second half with more guns than Kingston High and that was the story of the unbeaten giants Saturday before nearly 6,000 spectators at Butts Memorial Field.

Poughkeepsie took it all, 27-7, to climax an undefeated season with six straight victories and the first DUSO championship for the school since 1927.

The triumph produced the seventh undefeated campaign for Coach Kalloch. It was the first Kingston setback in six games.

For two hectic periods, a gallant Maroon squad battled the monsters to a 7-7 standstill but the inexorable power and class of the Poughkeepsie squad—one of the finest in DUSO history—asserted itself in the second half.

Kingston struck boldly early in the game to move ahead 7-0 on a 19-yard pass play from Roger Billings to Johnny Turk and Gene Massa's conversion but that was to be their only serious offensive threat of the day.

Johnson Runs Wild
The Blues' Charlie Johnson, a fast, shifty Negro halfback, dazzled the huge crowd with one of the most spectacular exhibitions of running ever seen on Memorial Field. And when Johnson wasn't mesmerizing the Maroon defense, big Dom Pacio stormed through the line like a runaway bulldozer.

Johnson scored the first touchdown on a seven-yard end run in the second quarter and passed to Gary Mendez, the giant halfback for what proved to be the winning touchdown in the third period. The pass followed a scintillating runback of 34 yards on a reverse to the Kingston 46. The payoff peg from Johnson to Mendez consumed 24 yards. The reverse from the kickoff stunned the Kingston defense and they never seemed to quite recover from the shock.

The lithe speedster was to scamper 26 yards for another TD on an electrifying burst in the fourth period. Apparently trapped at midfield on an end sweep, Johnson stopped on a dime, reversed his field and sped to the corner of the field. Fred Jackson was in pursuit and made a futile stab at him as Johnson ghosted across the last strip.

Pacio, who is built like a fireplug and was just as solid Saturday, ran up terrific yardage after the reverse. He set up the final score with an interception and produced the touchdown with a smash from the 1-yard marker.

Massa Terrific
Gene Massa played his heart out for a Kingston team that suffered a big blow early in the game when the ace tackle, Bill Engle, incurred a leg injury. Engle was able to remain in the game but never at full capacity.

Massa punted in spectacular style and his first effort travelled 75 yards to put the Blues in a hole and set up the only KHS scoring sequence. The pignisk travelled 75 yards over the goal line and when the Blues kicked out to the Kingston 49, the Maroons were off.

In 11 plays and two offside penalties against Poughkeepsie they marched 51 yards for the score and a 7-0 lead. Billings faked a kick and passed to Massa on the 35. Billings picked up a first down on the Poughkeepsie 24 on fourth down and a five-yard penalty set the Blues back to the 19. The Poughkeepsie line stiffened and flattened Massa, Johnson and Jay Souers for no gain on three smashes but on fourth down Billings hit Johnny Turk all by himself in the end zone for the TD.

Poughkeepsie lost a chance to tie Kingston a few minutes later when Mendez dropped a perfect pass in the end zone. But the next time Poughkeepsie had possession it moved 41 yards on eight plays with Johnson streaking 13 yards around left end. He bulldozed past two Kingston defenders on the 1-yard line, Dahowski kicked the extra point to tie it at 7-7.

The Blues outtricked Kingston on the kickoff for the second half, Johnson moving to the Kingston 46 on the receiving end before he was stopped. Six plays later, Johnson passed to Mendez from the one and Dahowski kicked his second placement for a 14-7 lead.

Poughkeepsie went 65 yards for its third TD with Pacio tearing the Kingston defense to shreds. It was almost a personal tour until Johnson reversed the field with his dazling from the 26. This was the clincher, boosting the Blues' lead to 21-7. Pacio made a key interception at midfield and raced to the Kingston 27. An interference penalty on a pass set the Maroons back to their 1-yard marker and big Dom bulldozed over from that spot.

The statistics made out a strong case for Poughkeepsie's superiority. Kingston was limited to 72 yards rushing and 48 yards passing. Poughkeepsie picked up 203 yards on the ground and 110 yards in the air. The first down margin was 18 to 6 in favor of the Blues.

Port Jervis-NYMA Game Canceled In PG Dispute

The Port Jervis-New York Military Academy football game scheduled for Saturday was canceled.

David Panebraker, of Liberty, chairman of the Section Nine committee of the New York State Public High School Association, said Friday that Port Jervis would not play the Cadets if NYMA insisted on using a post-graduate player.

The NYMA authorities, on the other hand, have protested against the eight-semester rule which went into effect two years ago covering games wherein the teams of state public high schools face private schools.

The question was raised by Pete Newell, a graduate of Ramsey High School who was an all-Jersey choice while at Ramsey. He and another back, Jim Roach, have been the mainstay of the Cadets' team this year.

Newell did not play against Pearl River and the game was tied, 27-27, after Pearl River filed a protest.

Real Unsung Heroes of Football Are Fans; They Pay Their Way in Miserable Weather

Francis Wallace, the Bellaire, O., boy who has made a career of turning his love for football into pieces people pay to read, was bending over a typewriter in the pressbox at Ohio State.

It was dark and ugly outside. Now and then an especially forbidding cloud would spit a handful of snow down from the sky. The wind had been announced at 18 miles an hour, but it seemed to be blowing harder.

Wallace had just written something to the effect that in addition to death and taxes, nothing was more sure than lousy football weather in November.

"And you may also say," he remarked, "that the idiots are beginning to gather in great numbers."

They Came...and Came
They came with blankets, great coats, scarves and galoshes. They came to sit for two hours or better and figuratively knock a chip off the shoulder of all manner of aches, aches and miseries. They had even paid for the privilege—some of them scalpers' prices.

We talked about it and decided that the real unsung heroes of football were the fans. Reasonable provision had been made for our comfort. But John R. Customer, he could take it as it was, or leave it, and here he was, more than 82,000 of him, taking it. Wallace and his friends concluded that in this day of television by the fireside and near the refrigerator, the whole thing was rather incredible.

A delegate from Michign was telling about the day in Ann Arbor a few days ago when a chill rain suddenly changed to freezing sleet that pelted thousands throughout the afternoon.

"There were thousands of fur coats in the stands," he recalled, "and when their owners got home, many of them were put on radiators or hung up in front of fires to dry. They cracked and were ruined. A furrier said that a conservative guess would be at least $100,000 worth of coats were ruined."

But, Michigan won the game, so nobody cared much.

Mr. Wallace lately returned from a Texas junket. One aspect of Southwest Conference games impressed him mightily.

When the teams come on the field they stand before the bands while the alma mater of each school is played. Then a minister gives a short prayer. The national anthem follows.

It provides a combination of school spirit, religion and patriotism that is inspiring. It can't help but have an effect on the players and spectators.

Football could use far more of that kind of side play if you can call it that—and far less suspicion, growling, back-biting and the over-coaching and over-rooting that is the cause of so much of the present day stresses and strains.

Habers Approach YMCA Title

Haber's Grill remained undefeated and assured themselves of nothing worse than a first place tie in the "A" League at the Y Saturday with a decisive 70-55 romp over Lincoln Park Inn.

The victory was the seventh straight for the array of KHS basketball aces.

Big Dick Bezemer sparked the club with 29 points to boost his seasonal total to 155 for a 22.1 average in seven games.

Haber's grabbed a 16-6 lead in the first period and the outcome was never in doubt. They led 30-15 at the half and the Presidents failed to impress until the last quarter when they scored 24 markers against a relaxed Haber defense.

Three other Grillmen hit in double figures, Skip Broadhead and John Godwin with 10 apiece and Bill Haber with 12. George McElroy, the Y physical director, dumped 18 and Jack Doyle hit 14 for the Parks.

Angels Survive
Harry's Angels had some anxious moments before picking up steam to flatten Victory Bakery, 72-43, for their fifth win of the season.

A 23-10 second quarter turned the tide after the Bakers had pressed them 12-16 in the first period.

Lafayette Holstein rimmed 22 points to pace the Angels, with Ward Dunham bucketing 17, Bill East 15 and Big Bill Kleine 12. Fred Orr and Don Smith hit 10 each for the losers.

Jones Dairy's 3102 Blast Wins Over Schryvers, 2-1

Randy Kelder's 689 Leads Scoring Duel

Jones Dairy met the challenge of Schryver Lumber with a 2-1 triumph Saturday on the Lumberjacks' home planks at the Central Recs.

With a large crowd looking on, the Dairyemen cracked with 3102 and games of 984, 1106 and 1012.

Randy Kelder's 266 helped salvage the third set for the home keggers, 1064-1012. The veteran ace staged a remarkable comeback to topple 689 high series, blasting 259 and 266 after a 164 opener.

Five others crashed the "600" circle, with Johnny Ferraro slamming 268-646, Charlie Manfro 266-642 and Dick Howard 238-222-634 for Jones Dairy. Larry Weishaupt bombed a 245 solo and Harold Broskie hit a 224.

On the Schryver side, Larry Petersen rolled steadily for 216-223-632 and George Robinson rallied from a 169 opener with 229-214 for 612. George Shufeldt fired 202 in the leadoff. Failure of Fred Rice to approach his usual form hurt the Lumbermen's chances. They totaled 3055.

Elstons Win Pair
Elston's Sport Shop won the odd game from Rapp's Express in another intra-city clash at the Bowldrome, blasting 2936 to 2678 for the Expressmen, who salvaged the third game 966-843 after dropping the first two by a wide margin.

Frank Grimaldi led Elstons with 201-242-616 and Angie Ferraro posted 224-222-613. Jackie Ferraro had 202-204-582. Top keggers for Rapp's were Boots Leskie 226-577 and Ken Joseph 205-573.

High Court Calls For Reinstatement Of 5 Indictments

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Supreme Court today called for reinstatement of five pro-Truman indictments against five pro-Truman Democrats accused of lying to senators investigating the alleged sale of federal jobs in Mississippi. The vote was 8-0.

The indictments grew out of hearings by a Senate Executive Expenditures subcommittee at Jackson, Miss., in 1951. The U. S. District Court in Jackson dismissed the indictments on the technical ground that they failed (a) to name the officer who administered the oath at the hearing, and (b) state by what authority such an officer acted.

Justice Minton delivered the court's decision. Justice Reed took no part.

live off investments with the other half.

Hall already had dissipated in four years a $200,000 fortune left in the late 1940s by his father, a respected lawyer of Pleasanton, Kan. That money gone, Hall turned to robbery and served a prison term. While in prison, he said, he conceived the kidnapping scheme.

Mrs. Heady, a normal housewife for 20 years, became an alcoholic after her divorce in recent years. She met Hall in St. Joseph where he got a job when he was released from prison on parole.

Both defendants have been undemonstrative about their plight. Mrs. Heady has said all she wants now is to die in the gas chamber.

He was removed Tuesday night after the final showing here of Sabre Jet, and will follow it to New Haven.

Lt. Strother, a veteran of 10 years in the Air Force, resides in Kingston at 103 Downs street. He flew B-25's in combat in the European Theatre during World War 2 and later was instructor on B-17's and B-29's.

As another part of the program, Lt. Strother said, the Air Force makes available official films for showing to any service club or other group. Arrangements may be made by calling him at his Stewart Field office. Plans are also being made to bring a Jet precision flying team to Stewart Field in the Spring, he revealed.

Priscilla Brown Sells First Yule Seals on Friday

Miss Priscilla Brown of Kingston, declared winner of a countywide children's carol singing competition, inaugurated Ulster county's 1953 Christmas Seal Sale by selling the first sheet of seals to Dr. Frederic W. Holcomb, president of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association, in the store window of Montgomery Ward & Company on North Front street Friday.

Miss Brown was named winner on the basis of applause as measured in a meter. Other finalists who competed in Friday night's ceremonies were Tom Sinagra of Highland, Martha Russell of West Hurley and Gloria McLaughlin of Saugerties.

A chorus of children rendered several favorite Christmas carols, including Come All Ye Faithful and Silent Night. Dick McCarthy was master of ceremonies.

In a brief talk outlining the purpose of the Christmas Seals, Dr. Holcomb pointed out that the funds raised are used for promotion of free community chest X-rays, for community, industrial and school health education and promotion through pamphlets, posters, leaflets and films, education in mental health, cooperative services with other health and welfare agencies, medical research and rehabilitation.

Dr. Holcomb said a new rehabilitation counselor has been employed to help patients at the county tuberculosis hospital, through guidance, "to a healthier, happier and more useful comeback."

Seals Are Mailed
James L. Rowe is general chairman of the sale, which opens today. The mailing of the seals was timed so that most homes in the county will receive them today.

Dr. Holcomb expressed the association's thanks for volunteers who helped on the drive, the newspapers and radio station, and to Montgomery Ward & Co., for the use of the display window.

"Buying and using Christmas Seals on all letters and packages is an American tradition," Dr. Holcomb said.

Motorists Report Hit-Run Drivers

Police received two reports Sunday of cars struck by hit-and-run drivers.

William Gardiner, of 43 Cedar street, reported at 6:39 p. m., Sunday that his sedan was damaged on the left rear fender and rear bumper by a car which continued without stopping.

Sebastian Bigler, of Second street, Connelly, reported at 2:08 p. m., that while his sedan was parked on Foxhall avenue in the Stephan street area, early Sunday, it was struck by a car which apparently failed to stop. The left rear door and fender were damaged, he said.

Survey of Thailand Given in Talk, Slides

A survey of life in Thailand was given by Dr. Lyle A. Sutton of Albany at the First Dutch Church Saturday evening.

The talk was illustrated with a wealth of photographic slides taken by Dr. Sutton during his recently completed medical teaching assignment in Thailand under the direction of the Mutual Security Administration.

Living conditions, farming procedures and religious practices were outlined. Materials of native handicraft were on display.

Dr. Sutton was introduced by Frederic Snyder. In a brief talk prior to the offering, Mrs. Charles S. Jones noted that the money collected will be sent to Korea to aid those made homeless by the war.

Reynolds and "extraordinary" from DeWitt Wallace, the publisher of Reader's Digest. Random House also was bewildered. Reynolds said he carefully checked Dupre's background and reputation before writing the story. Wallace said he thought any reporter would have accepted the story.

Both Reynolds and Wallace said Dupre seemed to have no desire for money, was surprised when told he would get part of the returns and said he would turn the money over to the Boy Scouts.

Dupre had told his story to countless Canadians, from cabinet ministers to boy scouts, long before publication of the Reynolds story. Reynolds said yesterday of Dupre's motive:

"His whole belief is that the only way to combat evil is to have complete faith in God... he found out that as he invented experiences, the boy scouts and other groups he addressed listened to him with more respect. His story grew and grew until he didn't possess it any more. It possessed him... he is super-religious and this was his way to get his message across."

Doug Collins, a reporter for the Calgary Herald exposed the hoax after the newspaper decided to question Dupre about a photograph produced by a Royal Canadian air force veteran. The photo showed the veteran and Dupre in Victoria in the RCAF at the time Dupre supposedly was in Nazi hands in France.

Collins, who had worked with British intelligence, quickly trip-each tent ordered a cooling off period. The explainers pleaded, shouted, smiled and threatened. Explanations have been held only seven days since the originally scheduled starting date Sept. 26. The period is due to end Dec. 23.

POW's Vote

The explanations resumed after a surprise flipflop Sunday. The Reds had insisted stubbornly since Nov. 5—the last day explanations were held—on reviewing the remainder of a Chinese compound they failed to finish that day. The Chinese refused to come back for a second try. They suddenly dropped that demand and asked for the North Koreans.

Observers said the Communist explainers discussed the atomic bomb, accused the United States of trying to make a "colony" of Korea "as the Japanese did." They said United States Secretary of State John Foster Dulles had threatened to cut off economic aid to South Korea if she did not attack North Korea.

The observers said it appeared the Reds were trying to pump as much propaganda as possible into the POWs before they went back to their compound, hoping the prisoners would change their minds later.
